The paper begins with stating the necessity of presentation of phraseological polysemy in the dictionary. As the research into a big number of phraseological dictionaries witnesses, there may be three problems connected with this type of phraseological paradigm. Firstly, different shades of meaning can be represented in the entry as different meanings. Secondly, different meanings of polysemantic phraseological unit can be given as shades of the same meaning. Thirdly, the meanings of polysemantic phraseological unit are not always given in a proper order.